

In the rural areas of Vance County many of the land use problems have occurred because of the absence of proper soil stabilization and conservation practices, the lack of control over the types and location of new development in association with existing land uses or environmentally sensitive areas.